Let's all support our young people, the speakers, our shepherds, and this special day's activities!

In His sermon about Himself as “the bread of life,” when Jesus talked about people eating His flesh and drinking His blood, what did He mean?

Listen to the Master: “Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink His blood, ye have no life in you. Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day” (John 6:53,54). So, it is undeniable that Jesus spoke about humans eating His flesh and drinking His blood. What in the world do those expressions mean?

Prior to saying those things, Jesus described Himself as “the true bread from heaven” (John 6:32), “the bread of God” (6:33), and “the bread of life” (6:35). Why would He call Himself “bread?” Bread was a staple food item for Jesus’ Jewish listeners. Just as bread made from wheat or barley sustains one’s physical body, so Jesus provides what a person needs in the spiritual realm. When we come to Him, we will never hunger or thirst again. The Christ said so (6:35). When we comprehend the spiritual security and blessings He provides for His followers, we feel a sense of satisfaction and have no interest in pursuing anything or anyone else. Jesus, as “bread,” gives us all we need.

Jesus said that one who sees Him and believes on Him may have everlasting life, and Jesus will raise him up (6:40). He also said that he who eats of the living bread which came down from heaven will live forever (6:51). Again, a person who eats Jesus’ flesh and drinks His blood has eternal life and Jesus will raise him up at the last day (6:54). What conclusions can we draw?

Conclusion no. 1: According to Jesus, who will live forever? (1) One who believes on Him; (2) One who eats the living bread which came down from heaven; (3) One who eats His flesh and drinks His blood. These are not three distinct actions, but rather are equivalent to each other. When one believes on Jesus in a biblical sense, he is “eating” His flesh and “drinking” His blood, as he reaps the benefits of the Christ’s sacrifice.

Conclusion no. 2: The message of Jesus recorded in John 6 about Him being the bread of life and eating His flesh . . . is not talking about the Lord’s Supper. First, consider to whom He said those things. He was speaking in a Jewish synagogue (6:59) to a mixed multitude, an audience consisting of His disciples (6:60) and murmuring Jews (6:41). Second, consider when He said all of those things — about one year before His death (He instituted the communion less than twenty-four hours before He died).

Third, consider what the Master was emphasizing – He was teaching about the need to come to Him in order to have life (6:35,44,45,47). His message in John 6 was not about a memorial to remember His death after we become His disciples. Think about it.

One Pin

How many pins does it take to explode a balloon? You may have many, but one is sufficient. So it is with false doctrines.

Usually there are many arguments that expose it to be false, but one is sufficient. For instance, many claim to be directly guided by the Holy Spirit in what they teach. If so, why do those who claim this teach differently, even contradict each other as well as the Bible? The idea is false.

We are led, guided and taught by the Holy Spirit by the all-sufficient Word. Why not be content with God's word?

"And just as you want men to do to you, you also do to them likewise. But if you love those who love you, what credit is that to you? For even sinners love those who love them. And if you do good to those who do good to you, what credit is that to you? For even sinners do the same."
